

10.3_D Possible answers

	Advantages	Disadvantages
New guidelines to be based on best available evidence/ Clinical Evidence site	up to date, reflects best practice	not always relevant to local conditions on the ground
Detailed discussions with relevant staff to ensure that the new guidelines are effective in meeting local conditions	provide opportunity to amend guidelines to local conditions journal club format shown to work elsewhere	staff may not want to take ownership it may be difficult to identify all relevant staff – resulting in only partial coverage
Integration into new computerized clinical support system	easy access to guidelines quick to update guidelines and share new guidelines integrated into other processes	computer system still in development doctors can still ignore evidence computer bugs/security issues
